Registration for this free event is essential, as spaces are limited

This FREE event has already attracted delegates from Spain, Hungary and Romania. The conference examines how partnerships between industry, academic institutions and government can help drive regional innovation and economic growth. A range of international speakers will describe their regions' experiences of stimulating regional innovation and developing regional partnership models. Delegates will hear about the implementation of the South East Action Plan for Jobs and from those targeting the growth of specific industry sectors in the region.

The conference explores how industry and research institutions can better collaborate to deliver Innovation that meets Industry needs; and therefore is of particular interest to those involved in sectors such as agri., digital media, pharmaceutical, medtech, advanced manufacturing and ICT in tourism. In addition, the conference will include a workshop looking at opportunities, both public and private, for funding a company's innovation lifecycle.

eDIGIREGION is a unique collaborative project that brings together four high-potential research-driven clusters in diverse European regions (South East Ireland, Central Hungary, Castilla-La Mancha, Spain and Bucharest-Ilfov, Romania). The aim of eDIGIREGION is to use the triple helix partnership to plan, design and implement an ecosystem of research, innovation, creativity and commercialisation that supports the implementation of the EU Digital Agenda in each region.
